MEMBERSHIP CLASSIFICATIONS (Check one only.)

Associate membership shall be open to firms that offer services to any class of members, as well as buying and/or selling groups or associations. It shall also be open to firms that sell products primarily for the manufacturing process. Please check the box that best describes your reason for joining ISSA:

- To provide services to some or all members
- To provide training or consulting services to association members
- Publisher of trade magazines or periodicals

Distributor membership shall be open to those firms that occupy a place of business, a principal purpose of which is the sale of cleaning and maintenance products to commercial, industrial, or institutional end users. The primary source of these products shall be the distributor's warehouse inventory, which in turn is derived from several manufacturers.

Manufacturer membership shall be open to those firms engaged in the manufacture of products for sale to members. This classification is also open to importers into North America from one or more international manufacturers for sale to members.

Wholesaler membership shall be open to those firms that occupy a place of business, a principal purpose of which is the sale of cleaning and maintenance products from several manufacturers to distributor members primarily from the firm's warehouse inventory. No sales shall be made to industrial/institutional end users.

Cleaning Services membership shall be open to those firms that occupy a place of business, a principal purpose of which is the sale of cleaning and maintenance products from several manufacturers to distributor members primarily from the firm's warehouse inventory. No sales shall be made to industrial/institutional end users.

International Branch membership is available to all member companies for facilities geographically separated from the official member location. The official location must be an ISSA member, and the names of both the branch and official member location must be the same. This membership carries all privileges and responsibilities of active membership except the right to vote or hold office.

COMPANY DESCRIPTION (Please provide the following information that may be used for the ISSA Membership Directory.)

Provide general company description; the description should not include specific manufacturer names for the product lines sold.
